Connecting Young Professionals at TJ

Barri Worth Girvan

Fourth grade religious school class, bat mitzvah, standing under the chuppah in the newly renovated outdoor chapel... these are a few of the pivotal moments that stand out when I think about how Temple Judea has impacted my life. I'm not alone – almost every member of our community has experiences that have drawn them closer to synagogue life and made them feel more connected.

At a time when so many people feel disconnected in the unpredictable world around us, Temple Judea is a place where we can connect. And to our credit, it is also a place where we can grow and evolve.

I grew up at Temple Judea, and yet still have the opportunity to experience our synagogue through fresh eyes. As a new board member I am constantly learning about our history, what makes us tick, and meeting new people of all ages.

One of the things our community can take great pride in is our rising young professional engagement. While we know that millennials have a reputation for apathy, throughout Los Angeles and specifically here at Temple Judea nothing could be further from the truth. When young people are given the opportunity to connect, we do so in meaningful ways.

Temple Judea is working with young professionals in their 20s and 30s to promote involvement in synagogue life. In just over two years we have engaged hundreds of young professionals with programs like Shabbat in the Park, wine & cheese receptions, Sushi in the Sukkah, and Hanukkah parties. Many of these programs have been joint efforts with other Valley synagogues, providing ample opportunities for reconnecting with old friends, meeting new people and plugging in to Jewish life in the Valley. It's a fact that synagogues around the country are struggling to engage this population, and while there's plenty of work to be done, we are filling a need, building the next generation of our community's leaders.

Temple Judea has always embraced new faces, change and the opportunity to grow our next generation, and today this work is ever more imperative.

Whether it's engaging in our young professional activities, sending your kids to Jewish preschool at our ECC, or simply joining us on Friday nights for uplifting Shabbat services, there is no shortage of opportunities for young professionals to connect with our vibrant community. And we could all use a little more connection these days.

Passover: Seven Days or Eight Days?

Cantor Yonah Kliger

Have you ever wondered why some people celebrate seven days of Passover while others celebrate the “traditional” eight days?

It can be confusing. Especially since the Torah tells us that we are to celebrate for seven days, while most garden variety calendars that you can pick up at your local Ralphs will tell you that the holiday lasts eight days. You’d think that since it’s so clearly stated in the Torah, there would be no further questions. Alas, you know what they say about Jews and opinions...

The reason for this discrepancy comes from way back, when the months of the Jewish calendar were figured by the new crescent moon. A rabbinical court in Jerusalem would bless the new month based on the testimony of people who claimed they witnessed this moon. Since a lunar month is roughly 29.5 days, a Hebrew month would last 29 or 30 days.

The court would take time to get the word out to the rest of the Jewish population, which was typically done using fire signals. Later, the Cutheans, a group that opposed the rabbis, burned signal fires on the wrong days—just to throw people off!

Now that the fire method couldn’t be trusted, the rabbis began sending messengers to deliver the news in person. This proved to be even more difficult and took much more time. So much more time, that people in faraway communities (such as Babylonia) would often receive the message too late, and therefore wouldn’t know when the new month had begun.

So, just to be safe, they decided to observe each Yom Tov (Holy Day) for two days instead of one. This way, at least one of the days would reflect the holiday. In the case of Passover, it meant that the actual Yom Tov was not only the first and seventh days, but was now the first and second, and seventh and eighth days. Therefore, Passover became an eight-day holiday.

So what do we do now? Well, most Conservative and Orthodox Jews in the Diaspora continue the custom of celebrating an eight-day holiday. However, Reform Jews, along with most Jews in Israel, celebrate only seven days. After all, with the technology we have today, there should be absolutely no question as to when the holiday begins.

Whether you choose to uphold the custom of eight days, or adhere to the Torah’s commandment of seven, I hope you have a liberating and meaningful Passover.

What ELSE is happening in the ECC?

Margie Ipp - Director of ECC

Lisa Whitman - Assistant Director of ECC

Brene Brown's book, Rising Strong, is not a parenting book, and it's not a book about child development. It's a book for adults about resilience – about being brave in your life, inevitably falling down, and picking yourself back up again with grace and a little self-awareness. And yet, a quote in Rising Strong struck me as the true reason that we do what we do every day in the Early Childhood Center. The quote on page 216 says,

“We can't be brave in the big world without at least one small safe space to work through our fears and falls.”

It's a powerful statement. It says that in order to be brave, to take risks, to learn, we have to have a safe place where we know we will be supported and loved even if we fail. That is exactly what we are trying to create every day in the Temple Judea ECC. The children will learn facts about lots of interesting things, and when they leave the ECC they'll be “ready for kindergarten,” however, THE MOST IMPORTANT THING they will learn at school is that it's okay to try and fail, and try again. Our teachers are here to let them know that sometimes they will win, and sometimes they will lose, and on both days they will be supported and celebrated. Our goal is to create that “small safe space” for children to work through their fears and falls so that they can be resilient little humans who know that there's a difference between making a bad choice and being a bad person.

Through our group discussions in the Parenting Center, and our daily one-on-one conversations with Nursery School parents, we are trying to let families know that encouraging our children to try and letting them fail is actually a gift. If we can show them at this young, pivotal age that we've got their backs and they are safe to try things out, fall down, and get back up again, then together we can help create a generation of strong, resilient, self-assured, emotionally generous, brave human beings. And ultimately, what's more important than that?

Women of Temple Judea Tracey Pomerance-Poirier, President

Lots going on with Women of Temple Judea and if you're not already involved, there are many more opportunities in 2017 for you to volunteer, attend our programs, and make new friends.

For starters, WTJ members are welcome to attend our monthly meetings -- they happen the third Wednesday of every month with occasional exceptions. Even if you're not a member yet but are thinking of joining, please come to our meeting and introduce yourself. We're a friendly bunch, and we welcome your participation.

If you were one of the more than 100 people who attended our Muslim Women's Panel in December, I'm sure you'll agree it was a fantastic program. Five amazing Muslim women shared their life experiences and it was truly fascinating. A timely program to say the least.

In February, we were happy to bring back Maggie Anton to Temple Judea, this time to discuss her book, "Fifty Shades of Talmud," and Jewish Women's Theatre was here for another great performance of "He Said...She Said."

Your calendars should be marked 'B' for Bingo on Tuesday, March 21, when Bingo Boy comes back to Temple Judea for our annual night of food, fun, drinks, prizes and much more. In case you haven't heard, this is not your grandmother's bingo!

To find out all that's going on with Women of Temple Judea, please check out our Facebook page, the WTJ page on the temple's website, or email WTJ@templejudea.com with any questions.

Brotherhood Dean Piller and David Daniel, Co-Presidents

Brotherhood began 2017, the way we ended 2016: bringing good food and lively conversation to Temple Judea! Weeks after our latest raucous, belly-filling Christmas Day Pancake Breakfast, we prepared a barbecue dinner for 100+ at the New Members Shabbat, and provided and served dinner to the homeless with the Hope of the Valley Mission. "And The Oscar Goes To..." our latest Speaker Series event with WTJ, was a huge success, as award-show experts Nicole Sperling of Entertainment Weekly and Glenn Whipp of the L.A. Times' "The Envelope" discussed this year's Oscar nominees and answered dozens of questions from the audience.

Coming up this spring: the return of the Men's Retreat! Sunday, April 2, Rabbi Sam Spector and a surprise guest will lead a day of relaxation, spirituality, bonding, great food, and lots of fun -- everything Brotherhood is about. All male Temple Judea members (18+) are invited to join us for this memorable event at Camp Hess Kramer in Malibu. You'll find more information and a link to sign up on the temple website calendar.

Please join us for the retreat, and for our meetings the second Tuesday of each month: what should we do for our spring speaker event? How about the theme of our next Tasting Series night? We need you to help us answer these questions, plan the events, and brainstorm future ways Brotherhood can continue to play a vital role in the Temple Judea community. Join us!

Social Action Jennifer Lutzky - Chair

While helping others is always a good idea, it seems more important than ever for us to embrace social action and participate in acts of tikkun olam. The Social Action committee provides activities which directly influence and assist others in our own community. But we need your help! We need Temple Judea congregants of all ages to become involved so we can have even more of a positive impact.

A good way to get involved: keep your eye on our calendar at templejudea.com/socialaction and join us at our events.

A better way to get involved: let us know what kind of events you would like to participate in! Is there a particular activity or group you would like us to be involved with? Email Jennifer at jenlutzky@yahoo.com or use the Contact Us box on our web page above.

The best way to get involved: join our committee! We are always looking for new members to help us plan our activities throughout the year. We meet at 7:30pm on the first Wednesday of each month, or email Jennifer at jenlutzky@yahoo.com for more information.

Yom HaShoah Shabbat Observance Friday, April 21, 2017 at 6:15pm

Join us on Friday, April 21, for our annual Yom HaShoah Shabbat observance as Temple Judea remembers the Holocaust with music and liturgy that commemorates the Holocaust and pays tribute to its millions of victims. We will also hear from Temple Member Jack Blok, whose parents, though not Jewish, found themselves in the midst of the chaos of World War II. The story of their acts of courage and defiance and their heroism in resisting Nazism will move you and leave a lasting impression.

For this year and future years of commemoration of Yom HaShoah, Temple Judea would appreciate knowing who in our community are survivors of the Holocaust or children of survivors of the Holocaust.

If this pertains to you, please contact
Rabbi Spector at sspector@templejudea.com
